A suspect in a stolen car eluded police on foot Thursday night after crashing a stolen sports car on Greer Street.

The car belongs to Harold E. Brown, 109 N. Heggie, Charleston, who discovered the car had been taken from the parking lot of The Brown Dirt Cowboy, a tavern at 209 E. Center St., about an hour after police recovered the car.

Police officers Gary Brown and Randy Payne first spotted the small foreign sports car about 10 p.m. as it weaved back and forth over the center line while eastbound on Greer Street

Couple bound over on charges of assault with intent to kill

CHARLESTON-An East Prairie couple, Linda and Stanley Davidson, were bound over to Mississippi County Circuit Court for trial on charges of assault with intent to kill Thursday following preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court before Judge T.J. Brown Jr.

In custody under bonds of $15,000 each, the Davidsons are accused of the Feb. 5 assault with a shotgun and .22-caliber rifle on Thomas Linley and his sister-in-law, Margie Linley.

The shootings occurred on a country road near the Whiting community about 11 p.m. Feb. 5.

Testifying during the preliminary were the victims, East Prairie Police Sgt. Bill Grissom and Patricia Linley, wife of Thomas Linley, who was a witness to the shootings.

the argument was about was not made clear during testimony.

testimony by Margie Linley that "I suggested we fight on a country road. It seemed that everytime we met (she and Mrs. Davidson) we argued, so I figured we'd just have a good fight and get it over with," she began in the tavern.

She continued by saying she got out of Thomas Linley's truck on the road and went over to the Davidson car. "I asked Linda to get out of the car and fight. The next thing I knew I was shot.

None of the three Linleys could say that the shot which struck Mrs. Linley had been fired by Mrs. Davidson.

Thomas Linley testified, however, that, he saw Davidson point the shotgun out the car window and fire into his truck door. Pellets from the shotgun struck Linley in the left hip and he was hospitalized for more than a week.

Grissom, the arresting officer, said he was called to the home of Thomas Linley, where he observed Mrs. Davidson lying in the seat of the truck. Linley was in the house when he arrived, Grissom said.

After an ambulance was called, he said he went to the Davidson home on East Pine Street, where Davidson told him he had shot Margie and Thomas Linley. Grissom said Davidson also told him that the shotgun was under a bed in the house.

After being advised by ambulance attendants by radio that the shooting victims had been shot by two different weapons, Grissom said he returned to the Davidson home where Mrs. Davidson told him she had shot Margie Linley with the rifle, which was recovered at that time from the Davidson home.

Judge Brown indicated that he was binding Mrs. Davidson over to Circuit Court on the basis of her admission of guilt as testified to by Sgt. Grissom. He overruled a motion by the defense attorney that bonds of $15,000 each be reduced and ordered the defendants to appear on March 17 in Circuit

The law was approved by a near 4-1 margin in the November election of that year, and the state Elections Commission has been working since then to implement it.

The law now requires that candidates spending or receiving more than $500 in their campaigns report the sources of the contributions and to whom the expenditures were made. It also says that all candidates, no matter how much they spend, must disclose their sources of income

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Women blame the men for not saying nice things about their wives' cooking, and the men go on thinking that if they eat it, that is compliment enough.

TOO LITTLE TO DO?

According to a "high-level" defector from the Czechoslovakian intelligence service, none other than Ralph Nader was once a prime target of Communist bloc intelligence operations in this country.

In testimony just released by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, the defector told the committee that in 1968 the Czechs began to collect an extensive file on Nader, as well as his relatives in Lebanon, because "he is such a powerful figure in public life in the United States" and it was decided it would be useful to recruit him if the chance ever arose.

The recruiting effort was never tried. If it had been, the Czechs would have had as much luck with Nader as General Motors had when it tried to buy off or blackmail the then-unknown consumer crusader.

This story tells us a couple of things. One is that the Communists have as much money to throw around on ridiculous espionage plots as the CIA. (As the amazed Nader commented, "It's like they had to make work.)

The other is that only in a free country can a private citizen become "such a powerful figure" that he attracts the attention of the cloak- and- dagger boys of a foreign government.

Frenchman's Reef, a Virgin Islands resort hotel, recently had a reservation request for "one room, one bed, three people." The travel agent quoted the rate as part of a "double- your- fun" package.

ROCK ON ... The pet rock nonsense goes on.

Something called the Rock Owners Club, Inc., has been organized "to protect owners and their valuable pedigreed rocks by giving them an opportunity to register their pet rocks in the National Rock Register."

For a membership fee of $3, owners will receive a Certificate of Registration (suitable for framing or -mounting), which lists the rock's name, the owner's or breeder's name and the official registration number as recorded in the National Rock Register. They will also receive a subscription to The Rolling Rock, official national publication of the Rock Owners Club.

Membership is open to all owners, breeders and lovers of pet rocks without regard to race, creed or national origin of the pet rock.

Besides owning a pet rock, though, it probably also helps to have a few in the head.

BEAUTY

If they awarded medals for appearance at the Winter Olympics, America would be out of the running.

Dressed in Navy peajackets, gray trousers and shapeless stocking caps, the American team arrived in Innsbruck, Austria, looking as though the Salvation Army ran the equipment pool, commented one wire service writer.

By contrast, the Russian team paraded through the stadium during opening ceremonies richly attired in twotoned fur coats and hats and sleek boots.

It has to be remembered, however, that the Russian teams, as well as many others, are heavily subsidized by their government.s In all logic, some of their athletes should really be classified as professionals.

The Americans, on the other hand, are strictly amateurs, as they are supposed to be, and are dependent for their support on donations from private sources. The team's clothing was, in fact, the gift of a mail- order house, and as one American said, "beggars can't be choosers.'

It is also thanks to the Russians that the spirit of the Olympics has changed over the years from that of competition between individual athletes to contests between countries to see who can amass the greatest number of gold medals. That competition now seems to include even uniforms.

Fortunately, it is performance, not appearance, that still counts at the Olympics. In this respect the American team has everything in the world to be proud about and nothing to be ashamed of.

RETAKEON *ANIMAL SAFETY

The American Humane Association is championing a bill that has been introduced in the California legislature which would make it a crime to kill or abuse an animal in the making of an entertainment motion picture.

The bill would also require producers, before releasing a film, to file an affidavit with a state commission affirming that no animal had been deliberately killed or abused. The commission would be empowered to stop the distribution of any film in which it was found that this

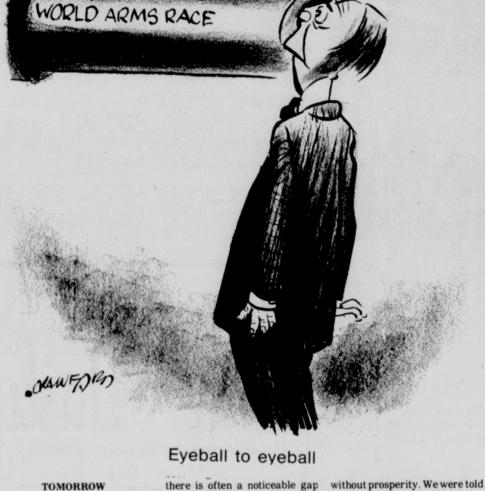

Many people may be under the impression that the AHA was already doing an effective job of overseeing the welfare of animals used in filmaking. Sadly, the facts are otherwise.

The elimination in 1966 of the Motion Picture Production Code also eliminated the AHA as the organization responsible for supervising animal action during filming. Although the association still provides "supervisory services for those filmmakers requesting it, many choose not to avail themselves of the opportunity.

The result has been an increasing disregard for the humane treatment and safety of animal actors, says the association. Thus the need for this bill.

GRACIOUS LADY

BOWING OUT

The retirement from Congress of Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan is sad for St. Louisans, though the distinguished representative surely merits the opportunity to relax after her 24 years of good and faithful service

A 1956 Globe-Democrat Woman of Achievement, Mrs. Sullivan is the first and only woman to represent Missouri in Congress. Overcoming party opposition at the time, she was elected in 1952 to the seat formerly held by her husband, John B. Sullivan, who died in office in 1951. Since her first success she has never been seriously challenged, either in Democratic primaries or in general elections. Her South St. Louis and St. Louis County constitutents in the Third District have returned her to Washington regularly in appreciation of her fine record

Mrs. Sullivan has earned the respect of her colleagues for constructive leadership. She was the author of the original food stamp bill, designed to make surplus foods available to needy Americans, but she has spoken out most vigorously against the abuses now afflicting the program.

She has successfully sponsored legislation involving poultry inspection, food additives, drug safety, truth in lending, equal credit, licensing of towboat personnel and a host of other subjects.

She was among the prime movers for funds to build the Gateway Arch as part of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial and she has been a leader in gaining flood control projects for St. Louis.

Mrs. Sullivan is an authority on the Panama Canal and she deserves national acclaim for her continued strong stand in defense of United States rights to the vital waterway.

She is chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and a senior member of four subcommittees of the House Banking, Currency and Housing Committee.

Mrs. Sullivan's announced departure from Washington at the end of the year means that at least half of Missouri's congressional delegation will be represented by new faces. Sen. Stuart Symington has already announced his retirement. His son, James, and Rep. Jerry Litton are forfeiting their seats in the House in a try for the Senate. Others leaving the House are Reps. William J. Randall and William Hungate.

Lee Sullivan will not be easy to replace, but the scramble to take her seat has begun already. While a gracious lady is bowing out, there will be a feverish political season in the Third District in the months to come. XXX

GAP BETWEEN COMMON SENSE AND OPINION OF 'EXPERTS'

As the 1976 election year is just around the corner, more and more Americans are becoming more gware that between common sense and the studied opinions of the experts.

In the field of political economy such a gap has been long in evidence. On the one hand, there have been a steady stream of experts who have maintained that balancing the federal budget was not necessary-and, indeed, not even desirable

And, on the other hand, the view of the average person, and the common sense view of many trained economists, as well, was that no person or institution can continue to stack up huge deficits without some rather dreadful consequences-sooner or later. A recent column in the Washington Post illustrated the phenomenon rather well when it remarked that though the man on the street views the national debt as perhaps the most important problem we face, the 'expert' economists to whom the government has listened, don't consider the national debt a problem at all.

But the gap between common sense and the "experts" is closing rapidly. In the last two years an overwhelming bulk of evidence has come to light which proves the "experts" were wrong.

The "experts" promised us prosperity without inflation.

Peroff was also worried about retaliation from the mobsters he had helped put in prison. At Dulles, they would have to pass through weapons detectors to reach him. Helstoski showed up with his blonde secretary, Kathy Dunn. The Congressman told Peroff that he wanted to hire an investigator to go to Chile and check into the background of the government witnesses, particularly Aguirre.

Peroff bragged about his criminal accomplishments and offered to accept the Chilean assignment for $50,000. The Congressman complained that the price was too high. He was sufficiently interested in Peroff's services, however, to ask for a second meeting

Helstoski claimed afterward, according to the tapes, that all he wanted Peroff to do was seek out "the truth." But Peroff contended: "That's not all he wanted. He said he thought the men (witnesses) had unsavory pasts, and he wanted me to bring back evidence of it. But he also said that if I couldn't find legitimate evidence, I was to bribe local officials to fabricate whatever was needed.' Then came the alleged murder suggestion. "If I was unsuccessful at that," Peroff added, "I was to 'make sure they're not around' for a trial."

The tapes contain Helstoski's vigorous denial. He claimed it was really Peorff who hinted about murder. Because of a court-imposed gag order, Helstoski could not comment directly.

The Congressman's version, however, is supported by his secretary. It is definitely her recollection, she told our reporters Jack Cloherty and Jay Peroff hinted at it during the initial meeting. Yet Helstoski still wanted to meet with Peroff a second time.

The tough, but likable Helstoski is a hero to the people of his working-class district. Once he took money from his own pocket to help a needy constituent. Certainly, he is more credible than the notorious Peroff. But why would a Congressman seek out a racketeer in the first place? And why would he want to meet with him a second time?

LUXURY TRAVEL: The World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank and the International Monetary Fund were set up to lend money to underdeveloped nations. But not all the money goes to help poor countries.

The three prestigious banks have spent more than $500,000 in the last two years, for example, to pay the travel expenses of wives who accompanied bank officials on business trips.

A Treasury Department study showed the World Bank, during a 21-month period, "funded 268 trips by spouses." In 44 cases, the bank paid not only for transportation but subsistence. The average wife's travel expenses ran well over $2,000.

The Development Bank paid the way for 76 wives to accompany their husbands during the same 21month period, at an average cost of $710. The International Monetary Fund paid the wives' expenses in 26 cases, shelling out an average of more than $2,000 per trip.

for the in-Spokesmen ternational banking organizations explained that most spouse travel is permitted only after the husband has been out of the country for months.

While most banking bigwigs prefer to travel first class, one exception is World Bank head Robert McNamara. The former Defense Secretary flies tourist almost without exception. He has been known to fume as his subordinates file into first class to be rewarded for it.

The increasing work load of the courts is understandable. Crime has been increasing. Legislators keep passing new laws. And there are ever more lawyers to file new cases. The federal courts have instituted rules to expedite matters, but there are limits to what the individual judges can do when the number of cases coming before each of them reaches 450 a year as it will in the year

Appointment of additional judges would relieve some of that ever-growing load. But the bar associations also have an obligation to discipline their members to require them to expedite justice rather than delaying it by tactics that in some cases border on barratry. BURGER ALSO has a point in his urgent request for better pay and pension equity for judges. We have never bought his argument that the erosion of judges' salaries due to inflation a violation of the constitutional provision that prohibits a cut in judge's pay while he is in office. That's a silly argument, simply an appeal for a cost-of-living escalator.

The pay of federal judges should be based on their worth. We believe most federal judges deserve more pay than they are getting. And certainly retired judges should get the same sort of pension benefits all other retired federal employes get Congress should see that they get those improvements.

Worldwide Strike?

To top labor chiefs, new drive on collective bargaining front is primary

WASHINGTON- With the Ides of March upon them, many national labor chiefs forgot about Carter's little political pills or Jackson's attempt to stonewall the opposition or that word had gone out to Hubert Humphrey from some impatient owerful union politicos that Hubert had better move this week openly and forcefully or 'forget it.

To these key labor chiefs -- in the public as well as private sector -- the issue was "bread," not ballots. This past Monday (March 8) was kickoff time for what may turn into the most turbulent industrial year in recent history. There even is a possibility of the strike. There could be swift settlements affecting several million workers. There probably won't be

Midday Monday, the Teamsters Frank Fitzsimmons jetted to closed Chicago conference rooms. There the final "costing out" conflict is being "hammered out" over the national Master Freight Agreement (covering 450,000 truck drivers) on the table. Their deadline is March 31. And around the country opposition Teamster cadres some eminently respectable but tough, such as William Hill (leader of the Pittsburgh-based specialty haulers) -- and some led by neoradicals, are waiting to battle for "more."

There could be rump strikes. highway blockades selected stoppages" at key truck terminals. These could quickly have America crawling over the great highways.

And Monday morning in Cleveland, AFL-CIO national vice president Peter Bommarito, head of the United Rubber Workers (URW), led his collective bargaining team into a closed room for tablepounding with the industrial relations vice presidents of the Big Four tire companies.

The rubber contract expires April 20 and Bommarito is on the spot. He has a very aggressive rank and file among whom are some ambitious local leaders prepared to lance anything 'Pete" brings home. So the union's demands monumental, even gargantual. Heavy

It takes all that to describe for example, the first demand: to raise the wages of 70,000 rubber workers to match those of the United Auto Workers. Statisticians put this at an increase of some $58 to $80 a man per week in cash.

And then there's the URW bid for a limitless Cost of Living Allowance in the new three-year contract. They want a penny increase per hour for every 0.2 of 1 per cent increase in the inflation rate. That makes it a nickel an hour per inflation point. So, since the econometrics crowd expects a 7.5 per cent (or so) inflation hike during each of the next three years, the projected increase in cash on this formula would top $44 a week.

All of which begins to top a $100 a week per man increase for the regular workers and about $124 a week for the skilled production hands.

But there's more. The URW sees this only as a "catch-up" with the past and the future. But the real catch is the demand for "meaningful" addition general wage increase. Which could mean anything -- but certinly it would take Houston's space center computer just to reckon the full price of labor peace "in rubber. For example, to this the union adds a demand for "severance, pensions and insurance in such amounts as to discourage the company from closing a plant or portion thereof, whether due to the threat of imports, relocation to a lower wage area, or for any other reason..." Any other reason could be economic, of

And "in any contract ex ceeding one year in duration, the union should have the unilateral option, at predetermined periods, of waiving the no-strike provisions of the agreement. You get the idea. So do the Big Four tire company bargaining teams. To them and their corporate chief executives Armageddon is a daisy walk compared with what they an-

There could be a national tire and chemical employes strike. This might explode into international stoppages and boycotts in Europe and other continents where the tire multinationals have plants.

The Geneva-based International Federation of Chemical and General Workers' Unions (ICF) has promised support around the world. Bommarito will meet with foreign labor chiefs on April 27. So the ICF leaders will once and for all either deliver foreign support or hold their fiery mouthings for a long time. But if there is global strike support, this will set a precedent for the United Auto Workers whose chiefs now are preparing for the March 18 Special Collective Bargaining Conbention in Detroit. There are other possible strike fronts -New York City transit, construction, etc.

Meanwhile it can be revealed now that the White House has welded "coordinating mechanism" to bring together the leaders of the Council of Economic Advisers, Mike Moscow's Wage-Price Stability Council and of course Bill Usery's Labor Department andMediation Service. They'll be on every collective bargaining front, haunting cajoling, pressuring, reporting back to Jerry Ford's Economic Policy Board's executive

The President, in midcampaign, then will have to decide whose side he's on. Whom will he pressure? Don't take for granted his executive muscle will be swung against labor.

Happiness belongs to the self-sufficient."

Eat your heart out! With St. Pat's Day fare

By MARY CIVIELLO

Wednesday, many people who are not Irish have wished they were, not only because of the St Patrick's Day festivities, but also because of the abundance of hearty Irish food prepared for the occasion. Nonetheless, just as many nonIrish don shamrock green and celebrate with the so can nonIrish homemakers prepare the traditional Irish meal, corned beef and potatoes.

Corned beef dates back to the Romans but the Irish made it their own. It was meat wellsuited to slow cooking over turf fires, where Irish cooking began.

Corned beef is from the plate, round or most commonly from the brisket. The meat is boned and trimmed of excess fat before being cured in a brine of salt, sugar, and color and falvor enhancers. The word "corned" stems from the early days when the beef was preserved by dry salting; a 'corn' was a grain of coarse Corned beef may be purchased with either a mild cure or a cure including spices such as allspice, cloves and peppercorns, and herbs such as bay. Garlic also may be added.

Select corned beef that contains little fat and weighs at least three pounds. Because corned beef is made from less tender beef cuts, it needs long, slow cooking in liquids. Some corned beef has been tenderized during processing, so it may be roasted in the oven following label directions. Corned beef may be served hot or cold but for maximum flavor, it should be sliced thinly across the grain.

Unopened ready-to-cook corned beef may be stored in the refrigerator and should be used within a week for maximum quality. Freezing corned beef is not recommended for best flavor and texture.

Why not surprise your family this St. Patrtick's Day with a real Irish treat

2 Tbsp. finely chopped parsley Rinse corned beef in plain water. Place in a heavy pan. Cover corned beef with water. Add sliced onion, bay leaves, rosemary and cloves. Cover pan and simmer 45 minutes to one hour per pound, or until fork tender. Remove meat to a roasting pan. Mix together brown sugar and flour. Add one tablespoon cooking liquid. Spread mixture over corned beef, stick with cloves and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 20 minutes or until topping is set. # Communication with children Tips on how to achieve this rarity development specialist Often parents don't really talk with their children. Children may not effectively commiunicate with their parents. They exchange maintenance statements: ("How was school?" "Just a little.") ("Why can't I go; everyone else is going." "Because I'm your parent and I said no.") These are not examples of parent-child interaction that encourage further communication.

By MARY JOHERDE Area child & family

Interaction between parent and child can become routine. All the rituals are maintained but feeling and understanding seem to be lacking. When a parent asks "How was school?" they often expect a short oneword answer. And the child quite often meets the parents' expectations by responding with one-word answer. They ask this question every day. It's part of their idea of what a good parent should do and it becomes meaningless because the answer becomes unimportant. It's part of their idea of what a good parent should do and it becoms meaningless because the answer becomes unimportant

How much more effective it would be to develop a relationahip where communication was at a deeper level. Here are some rules for developing a more sincere relationship.

Take time to listen to your child - really listen. Stop what you're doing, sit down and hear what the child has to say. Watch his body position, hear his voice level and meet his eyes. Nonverbal signals often speak louder than words. The parent who is too busy to sit down and answer a young child's questions may regret it when the child becomes a teen-ager and no longer cares to talk with the Children need to learn to make their own decisions. Mom and dad won't always be there to tell them what to do. When parents always solve problems, the child doesn't learn to make his own decisions. Be wary of commanding, sermonizing, lecturing and ordering. These are ways that parents solve problems for their children. Turn some of the "you shouldn'ts" into "What do you think you should do?" questions. Childhood is not as carefree as is sometimes portrayed on television and in magazines. Children often feel things very deeply.'A problem that appears unimportant to the parent may be of extreme concern to the child. Never discount a child's problem. Although it's easier to dismiss a child's concern with "Someday this will seem funny to you," or "You'll get over it," this may break down parentchild communication. It's another way of telling the child that he doesn't count. It's saying that his feelings are unim-portant or so trivial that time shouldn't be wasted thinking about how the child feels.

If a parent learns to take time and listen to the child, help the youngster learn to make decisions for himself based on careful thought, and accepts the importance of the child's feelings, effective com-munication between parent and child can begin. It is a step toward making interaction meaningful.

Knights were the only other undefeated major college team and finished the regular season at 28-0, the best record in the school's history.

Al McGuire of second-ranked Marquette was a distant third in coach of the year voting at points, followed by Dean Smith of No. 5 North Carolina at 56 points; C.M. Newton of No. 8 Alabama, 27 points, and Digger Phelps of No. 7 Notre Dame, 23 points.

May, a 6-foot-7 senior who averaged nearly 24 points a game, is a repeater from last year's All-America team. Benson, a 6-11 junior, averaged 17 points and led the team in rebounding and field goal accuracy to earn All-America honors for the first time.

"I'm tremendously pleased at The AP selection of Scott May and Kent Benson to the All-America team, and particularly that of Scotty as Player of the Year," Knight said.

'That pleases me much more than Coach of the Year selection, although I appreciate that honor and I'm greatful. But let's not kid ourselves, it's those players out there who did that for me.' Knight, just 35 years old, is finishing his 11th year as a college head coach. He compiled a 102-50 record in six years at Army and has an amazing 120-20 mark and four straight Big Ten championships in five seasons at Indiana.

for run at Class A title The little skinny kids have developed into By BILL HARRISON one of the best basketball teams in the state Two years ago I was down in the Matthews High School gymnasium getting ready to take some pictures of the Scott Central- Matthews basketball game and was sitting up in the stands along with Carroll Cookson and a couple of his players from Advance. Coach Cookson had come down to scout the Matthews Pirates, who were regarded as the top class 1-A ball club in the area at the time and it was a week before the regionals were to get started.

Down on the floor playing at the time was the Braves and Pirates JV teams and on the Scott Central team were five skinny kids, who were in the 10th grade at the time and coach Ronnie Cookson of the raves was yelling out instructions on how to play defense and run the fastbreak. The Braves defeated the Pirates in the preliminary to the varsity game and after coach Cookson returned to the floor before the varsity game began he looked up to his brother Carroll and said, "How did they look"?"
Carroll answered back, "they look pretty good." Well, two years later, as the old song goes "You ought to see me now."

The Scott Central Braves have just beaten a good Wright City team without any trouble whatsoever and look like the odds - on favorite to capture the state class 1-A title in 1976.

in any class. Otto Porter, Ricky Thomas, James Williams, Steve Mills and Keith May have developed into giants on the basketball court.

Matured Braves are ready

All five are indispensible as far as winning combination is concerned and it would be doubtful'if the Braves would have gotten this far without any one of the five. They are a team and play as a team and their play compliments one another.

Otto Porter has grown into a 6-4 sharpshooter, who is on the verge of setting a new scoring record for an individual in the state tournament which Lawrence Butler just set last year at 129 points. Williams hasn't grown much in stature but has developed into as good a guard as there is in the state for his size and can shoot with the best. Ricky Thomas has grown to 6-3 and is a devastating rebounder and shooter inside. Steve Miller does all that is expected of him on defense and can score in double figures in any game. Keith May also does his job and can shoot when needed.

After humiliating Wright City Wednesday night at Flat River the Braves head for Columbia for the semi-finals against Drexel at 3:05 this afternoon.

In Drexel the Braves will encounter a much smaller team than themselves as the tallest player will be only 6-1. Drexel has a record of 25-2 compared to the Braves 29-1

"We're not an outstanding team", commented coach Bill Hunt. "We've won a lot of one pointers and sometimes we wonder how we got this far," he said. Drexel has four players that are capable of scoring in double on a given night.

The other two teams in the semi-finals are Glasgow and Plato.

Glasgow is sporting a 30-1 record and over the past three years have compiled a enviable mark of 95-2. The only loss the Yellowjackets suffered this season was to Booneville. The only loss the Jackets suffered last year was to Advance.

Glasgow has good height in Fred Davis at 6-4 and Jerry Borges at 6-3. Davis is averaging 22 points a game and 15 rebounds.

Plato is coached by Bob Chance, who was a freshman starter for the School of the Ozarks when Ronnie Cookson was a senior on the same team.

Plato is big, averaging 6-5 across the front line and has twin brothers at forward who are the coaches younger brothers. Boy boys are good shooters. Plato's weakness is supposed to be at the guard position.

The final game, should Scott Central win Friday will begin at 7:05 Saturday.

Capital to host Ali bout

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) -Muhammad Ali should be in line for another million-dollar payday when he puts his world heavyweight boxing title on the line against Jimmy Young, the

No. 3 contender, on April 30. That was the estimate from promoter Don King after it was announced Thursday that the scheduled 15-rounder would provide the Washington, D.C., area with its first heavyweight championship bout in 35 years.

"Ali will get in the neighborhood of a million dollars," King said in a telephone interview after Abe Pollin, board chairman of the Capital Centre, declined to discuss purse guaran-

"I figure we can charge $100 for ringside," King said. "But we could have a special 'red carpet' ticket priced at $200. That would include a special floor show and food in the Capital Club. We want to make the invasion of Washington a glamorous, glittering affair.'

In announcing the bout for his arena, which will seat in excess of 19,000, Pollin said he was the promoter and described King as the matchmaker.

But he said the amount being paid the champion was "be tween King and Ali" and conceded that future talks with King would be necessary to decide on ticket prices.

A large scale of the purse, however, is expected from television receipts. Pollin said a bout between Ken Norton, the 1 contender, and Ron Stander would be carried on closed circuit at the Capital Centre, and both bouts would be seen on home television

Bench says that quick settlement is crucial

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - "We're in the 11th hour of something that is jeopardizing the baseball season. That was the dour statement

The owners still were adamant on the reserve issue, despite an arbitrator's decision in the case of pitches Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally which permits a player to play one year, then an option year and then becomes a free agent.

Cooper to head MU recruiting

Clay Cooper, assistant head foottball coach and a member of the University of Missouri staff for 19 years, will become recruiting coordinator for the Big Eight school, Athletic Director Mel Sheehan announced Thursday.

"This is a move that I've been considering for about a year," Cooper said. "The mental gymnastics of giving up coaching after 30 years is always something of an adjustment. Cooper"s primary responsi-also that Dave McGinnis, a graduate assistant, would be moved up to a full-time position. McGinnis will direct the junior varsity program.

"Save Our Wetlands" theme is announced by NWF

"Save Our Wetlands" will be the theme for the 39th annual National Wildlife Week.

More than 10 million students, teachers, and members of state and local conservation groups are expected to take part in the week-long nationwide observance from March 14 through 20, according to Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation, the 3.5-million-member conservation education organization that sponsors the event each year with its state af-

"Wetlands are a priceless and irreplaceable part of our national heritage," said Kimball. "They are important not only to wildlife but to man. They support a vast range of plants and wildlife, they aid in . the natural purification of our water supplies, they provide unique scenic and recreational areas, and a good part of our food supply.

"The problem with our wetlands," Kimball continued, "is that some developers regard them as wastelands, to be drained or filled, and 'improved' with buildings. We have bulldozed them and scarred them with drainage ditches until wetlands cover just a fraction of the area they once occupied.

There are about 20 varieties of wetlands, including marshes, swamps, river deltas, estuaries, prairie potholes, lakes, streams, river bottomlands and farm ponds, Kimball pointed out. Nearly every part of the country has wetlands of one kind or another.

Although the definition of wetlands has varied over the years, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service once estimated the original, natural wetlands of the 48 mainland states at 127 million acres. Another federal agency, the Fish and Wildlife Service, estimated in 1956 that at least 45 million, or more than 35 per cent, of these acres had been drained, filled or otherwise destroyed.

The 1976 fishing season on Mingo Refuge opens Monday, March 15 according to Refuge Manager, Gerald Clawson. All areas of the refuge will be open to fishing from March 15th to September 30th. After September 30th only those waters west of the ditch 6 road will be open. Fishing is allowed on the refuge during daylight hours only. Boats without motors are permitted.

All rules and regulations will be the same as last year with the following special regulations for the refuge being in effect again:

Non-game fish may be taken for personal use but not for commercial purposes by snaring, grabbing, snagging, longbow, crossbow, gigs, nets, and seines between March 15 and September 30. All trot lines, limblines, juglines, etc. must be labeled with name and address, and checked every 24 hours.

But it seems safe to assume after 23 more years of intensive development, particularly in coastal areas, that more than half of the original wetland areas has been lost forever.

One state, California, has already lost two-thirds of its marshland, according to an Environmental Protection Agency estimate, and another, Louisiana, is losing 16.5 square miles of marshland per

'The steady loss of wetlands habitat has been a major factor in lengthening our lists of threatened and endangered species," said Kimball, "We must preserve what is left and manage these precious areas in a responsible way. Everyone has a stake in saving our wetlands and that is why we chose this year's theme. On the positive side, Kimball noted that about 22 million acres of wetlands are now being preserved by the federal and state governments and private organizations. "We are making some headway," he observed. "but much more needs to be done.

Bing Crosby is the honorary chairman for the 1976 observance. Mr. Crosby, who was also chairman in 1950, has had a long-time interest in waterfowl, which must have wetlands to survive. Crosby emphasized that this year's Wildlife Week is one in which many people can become involved. "Nearly every locality has some type of wetland nearby," he said. "Each of us can take stock of the wetlands around our communities and learn whether they are being protected or in danger of being destroyed. If they are threatened, we should find out how we can help save them.

Playoffs to begin Saturday

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) -The magic name of Notre Dame and the lure of a national television audience are incentive aplenty for any underdog, figures Steve Collier of Cincinnati University.

'Nobody expects us to win, but it's Notre Dame and national television," said the Bearcat sophomore. "We'll be ready.

No. 7 Notre Dame, 22-5, and No. 13 Cincinnati, 23-6, clash on national television Saturday in the second game of the NCAA Midwest subregional doubleheader at Allen Field House. Tipoff is 4:15 EST.

In the first game, a regional television audience will see Missouri, the Big Eight Conference champion with a 24-4 mark, duel Washington of the Pacific-8, 22-5.

The winners advance to further regional competition next week in Louisville, Ky.

"We're gonna line up and go nose-to-nose and see who is the better team," Collier declared.

The Bearcats' leading scorer this season is Robert Miller, 6-11 center. The sophomore-laden squad is virtually the same one that beat Notre Dame last year, 95-87, in a consolation game in the NCAA

The Irish are energized by Adrian Dantley, 6-5 All-American who has averaged 29 points a game. Dantley, already Notre Dame's No. 2 all-time scorer, receives ample support from sophomore guard Dick Williams, who sports an 11.6 scoring average.

Notre Dame's five losses have all been to nationally ranked teams and Coach Digger Phelps feels experience is the best teacher.

"I feel we have really improved over the course of the season," he says. "I've seen improvement in all our players, especially Williams. He's got more confidence, his shooting has improved and he's just caught on to the system in general.'

Missouri-Washington The clash will pit height against quickness.

'It will probably depend on who gets the first jump," said Washington Coach Mary Harshman. "Our strength all year en our inside size ways," Bench said in Tampa. Fla. The Cincinnati Reds' catcher is among the leading players gathered to try to settle the dispute between the Major League Baseball Players Association and the 24 owners. "It is a personal and private matter," said Bench, contacted Thursday night.

Reuven Katz, attorney for the couple, refused to say when papers would be filed for dissolution of the marriage in Cincinnati under Ohio's no-fault divorce law.

"I am not going to file any-thing Friday," Katz said, adding that he could not comment on the couple's personal life.

Vickie Bench, 26, the former Miss South Carolina from Mount Pleasant, S.C., returned last month to New York City to resume her modeling career.

The 28-year-old Bench startled friends last month announcing he planned to attend the Mardi Gras in New Orleans alone. He went on from there to Tampa MOREHOUSE - Raymond Lawrence, received a check in the mail Thursday for $50 as a reward for the return of a missing brief case.

Lawrence, who works at National Bi-Products in Sikeston, was on his way home early last Friday morning when he found a brief case at the side of the road, just west of the intersection of 61 and 60 at the Holiday Inn. Looking on the inside, Lawrence discovered that the case belonged to William S. Lowe, who had been a guest speaker at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Thursday at the Holiday Inn.

Lawrence called the Holiday Inn only to learn that Lowe had checked out after the chamber's meeting and had reported it missing to them from Springfield.

Lowe called Lawrence and thanked him for reporting the missing case and asked if he would take it to Clem Beale at the Bank of Sikeston.

For this good turn Lawrence was rewarded.

THE BIBLE

No. 226. The Book of Proverbs: Discipline

Many of the admonitions found in the book of Proverbs are maxims or aphorisms which specifically emphasize desirable character traits or modes of conduct. Because it is a requisite for wisdom and the good life, discipline is highly prized by the wise.

The sage who addressed himself to the topic of discipline taught that corporal punishment is the appropriate method of disciplining a child. "Apply thine heart unto instruction, and thine ears to the words of knowledge. Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell." (Proverbs 23:12-14)

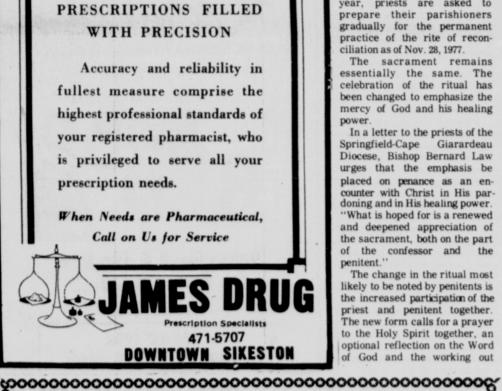

However, another important aspect of discipline involves constructive criticism. "The ear that heareth the reproof of life abideth among the wise. He that refuseth instruction despiseth his own soul: but he that heareth reproof getteth understanding. The fear of the Lord is the instruction of wisdom; and before honour is humility." (Proverbs 15:31-33)

What's the law?

The case of the nutty acorn tree

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Sam and Jake were neighbors who argued from different premises. Their main dispute, however, centered around an old and stately oak tree that, while solely on Sam's property, overhung Jake's house. And, annually, acorns would fall from the tree and clog Sam's drain and sewer pipes. What's more, Sam absolutely refused to trim any of the overhanging bran-

Thus, after years of being driven nutty by the acorns, Jake finally decided to take matters into his own hands. When Sam went away on a vacation, Jake brought forth his trusty saw and cut down the tree.

And upon discovering his stately oak lying in state on the ground, Sam sued Jake for destroying his property.

"He had no right to enter my property and chop down my tree," complained Sam in court. 'It was like committing mur-

"It was more like selfdefense," was Jake's answer. "If I hadn't destroyed that tree, it would have destroyed me Since Sam refused to cure the situation, I had every right to do what I did.' IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE. would you hold Jake liable for chopping down Sam's nutty

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while he sympathized with Jake's problem, he was not justified in taking the law into his own hands even to accomplish what

Sam should have done. It is well established, noted the judge, that a property owner may cut off overhanging branches of a neighbor's tree, or to sue the neighbor for damages and to make him cut down the branches, but he may not enter upon his neighbor's property and cut down the tree.

COMING SOON CHUBBY CHECKER SHOW

New hope for Mingo Refuge

WASHINGTON - A four-year old proposal to set aside 8,000 acres of the 21,646- acre Mingo Wildlife Refuge as a wilderness area is coming closer to realization thanks to steadfast efforts by conservation groups and recent support received from Missouri legislators.

Representatives of the National Wildlife Federation and the Sierra Club have now been joined by Missouri 10th District Rep. Bill D. Burlison and Sens. Thomas F. Eagleton and Stuart Symington in appealing for an 8,000- acre wilderness area which would include Monopoly Lake and an additional 1,100- acre area in the southwest corner of the refuge.

The proposal conflicts with the concept of 1,700 acres the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior wishes to set aside. At a hearing in Puxico in June 1972, environmentalists startled Fish and Wildlife Service officials with their request for Sentiment locally was almost 100 per cent in favor of the enlarged area.

The department, however, held fast to the 1.700- acre concept, declaring that artificial manipulation of Monopoly Lake levels was a violation of the Wilderness Act's provisions, a point conservationists disputed.

Since that time, those close to the situation relate, while the Fish and Wildlife Service holds to 1,700 acres, there has been asoftening of attitude toward the necessary drawdown of the lake and a feeling that there is no conflict with the wilderness concept.

For this reason there is a belief among those who have worked for the 8,000- acre proposal that an accommodation can be reached so the larger area can be placed in wilderness. In a bill currently before the House of Representatives, have expressed the need for statutory protection of the larger acreage, the only ecosystem of its type in Missouri. Others seeking the larger acreage in the wilderness portion of the Mingo refuge say it is necessary to preserve forever the remnants of the great swamp ecology that at one time made up Southeast

In addition, biologists and other scientists say, there are unique creatures and plants within the 8,000 acres that are not within the 1,700 acres the federal government wants set aside. A number of Missouri and some national champion size trees are outside the 1,700 acres. but within the 8,000 acres

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press Today is Friday, March 12, the 72nd day of 1976. There are 294 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1938, Germany invaded Austria. The next day, Adolf Hitler announced that Austria would be unified with Greater Germany.

On this date:

In 1664, New Jersey became a British colony as King Charles made a land grant to his brother James, Duke of York.

In 1912, the first parachute jump from an airplane was made by Army Captain Albert Berry at Jefferson Barracks,

In 1939, Pope Pius XII was elevated to the Roman Catholic

Finland surrendered to the Soviet Union, and a truce was signed in Moscow.

In 1947, President Harry Truman established what became known as the Truman Doctrine to help Greece and Turkey resist Communism.

In 1974, Jordan's King Hussein and President Richard Nixon met in Washington to discuss the Mideast situation and Jordan's request for more military aid.

Ten years ago: General Suharto was sworn in as acting President of Indonesia after President Sukarno had been stripped of authority.

Five years ago: Turkey's conservative government fell after an army ultimatum to quit or face a military takeo-

The Ambassador Writes for The Mini Page.

The "Real-Life" Shirley Temple Black!

Shirley as a child-star.

Shirley Temple Black shakes hands with Ghanaian women.
The People:

"The most wonderful part of being here in Ghana is getting to know the Ghananian people. Before coming here I had heard of their friendliness and good nature. They certainly must be among the most friendly people in the world — they are easy to meet, most cooperative and helpful. One couldn't ask to work with nicer people. An ambassador never knows ahead of time how long he or she will be in that post, but I hope my government lets me stay here a long, long time."

My Life in Ghana

By Ambassador Shirley Temple Black

My Job

In many ways the life of an ambassador is just as glamourous and as exciting as we sometimes see it shown in motion pictures. You go to dances and formal dinners, and you meet with many important people.

And it is also a lot of work. I spend many long hours in my wood-paneled office in our very attractive embassy, reading and reading — telegrams, letters, reports and recommendations — and writing my own telegrams and reports and recommendations.

A good deal of my time is also spent in meetings, largely with my own embassy staff of Americans, and with Ghanaian government officials. These meetings are mostly about the relations between the United States and Ghana. We are the largest buyer of Ghana's major export, cocoa beans (from which chocolate is made), and Ghana buys a good deal of the U.S.'s manufactured goods. The United States also has a large aid program to help Ghana improve its agriculture, health and management techniques among other things.

Editor's note:

Ghana is a country in western Africa. The capital is Accra. The official language is English but many people speak African languages. At one time Ghana was called "The Gold Coast" because so much gold was found there.

My Family

In Accra with me, of course, is my husband, Charles. We have been married for 25 years. Although he has his own business that he has to take care of, an ocean and fresh water research and fisheries company with offices in the United States and other nations, he spends as much time as possible in Ghana. Until the late part of September my oldest daughter Susan was also living with us. But she met a handsome young Italian diplomat who is stationed in Accra and they were married.

My two other children Charles Junior and Lori, are both still in college in the United States and can only visit us here on their vacations. This is the first time our family has been so widely separated and I find this the saddest part of being an Ambassador.

Oh yes, there is one other member of our family I almost forgot to mention. That is our nearly year-old boxer dog Damfo. Damfo is a Ghanaian word which means "friend," and our Damfo is one of the friendliest dogs you can imagine.

Guess Who? what? where? when? why? How?

What is a video disk?

A video disk is something new in TV. Soon people will be able to buy a disk that looks very much like a phonograph record. They can play it over their television set. With a video disk, they can play their favorite old movie anytime they want to! Someday people might be trading video disks just like we do records today.

What is the world's tallest tower!

The tallest tower in the world is the CN Tower in Toronto, Canada. It is over 1,800 feet high. Elevators you can see out of will carry you to a restaurant with a 100-mile-view near the top.

For Parents'in Teachers

This is a special block for parents and teachers to use when discussing The Mini Page with their children. Many children can read The Mini Page on their own. Others will need help.

Page 1. Talk about what you remember about Shirley Temple. Find Ghana on your world map. Discuss the job of an ambassador. Point out that an ambassador usually has his or her head-quarters in an embassy. The staff may include attaches or advisors on special things, such as economic attaches.

Page 2. Discuss Shirley Temple's life and how she has changed from a movie star to a diplomat. Talk about what "Run for Congress" means.

Page 3. Find Ohio on your U.S. map. Ohio State University is in Columbus, Ohio. Can you find that city? How do you think Archie Griffin felt when he won the trophy two times in a row?

Page 4. Discuss the gnu. Find Africa on the world map. Talk about the What Would You Do situations. If you say "I'm sorry" for something, does that make it O. K.?

Talk about how it feels to be afraid to try to do something. What happens when you don't try? What happens when you try and miss?

Meet Shirley Temple Black

Shirley Temple was born in California in 1928. At the age of 3, she began taking dancing lessons. By the time she was 6, she had been in several movies and won a special Oscar as the leading movie star of 1934.

Little Shirley Temple

Forty years ago, Shirley Temple was the darling of millions of fans. Back then, more pictures were taken of her than were taken of the President. She made lots of money from the movies she starred in and from the sale of Shirley Temple toys, dresses and other items.

When she got older, her pictures were not as popular. She married and settled down. She became interested in community affairs. She ran for Congress as a Republican. She was defeated.

President Nixon appointed her as one of our country's representatives to the United Nations.

Mrs. Black is a good businesswoman. She worked with a toy manufacturer to bring out a new Shirley Temple doll.

Her hobbies include gardening, playing golf and collecting souvenirs of her travels and old movies.
